"The Old Peabody Pew" which proved a great success when produced in the Redwood City Methodist Church will be repeated in the Menlo Park Presbyterian Church tonight. The well known play was put on under the direction of Mrs. Bess Balcomb, dramatic teacher of the Sequoia High School. The same cast of players will appear in Menlo Park, as follows: Mrs. Charles Kinkead, Mrs. Glen Alexander, Mrs. Gerard, Mrs. Carl Fisher, Mrs. Donald Bogle, Mrs. Jack Strand, Mrs. C. E. Winning and Mr. Al Davies.

K. L. MARTIN ADDS EXPERT TO HIS PLUMBING STAFF

K. L. Martin, prominent local plumber has added Michael Cogley of San Francisco to his efficient force of plumbers. Cogley is an expert sanitary engineer and resigned a position with a large San Francisco firm to come to Menlo Park, where he and Mrs. Cogley will make their future home.

Martin's rapidly increasing business caused the addition of a man of Mr. Cogley's ability and he was fortunate in making this selection.

IRISH SUPPER WILL BE SERVED AT PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

The ladies of the Presbyterian Church will serve an "Irish Supper" to the public on next Wednesday evening, March 20th. An interesting program will follow the supper. The patronage of the public is invited.

Mr. J. H. Heltzel, Rev. W. L. Bone and Rev. H. W. Harbaugh attended a Presbytery meeting in Oakland on last

A group of men under the leadership of Mr. Meyers will sing a group of the old time songs. A feature of the whole production will be the old time costumes in which all the characters and singers will appear. The story is a delightful story of humor and pathos representing the life of the people in a small American town fifty years ago. This will be a rare treat to play lovers at the Presbyterian Church tonight. The public is welcome. A silver offering will be taken. The local Christian Endeavor Society will use the proceeds for its benevolences.

Tuesday as representatives of the local Presbyterian Church.

At the regular services next Sunday the pastor, Mr. Bone will preach on the following subjects: "The Rediscovery of the Mind of Christ," and "Voices that Call."

Prayer meeting services are being held each Thursday evening at 7:45 until Easter.

MENLO PARK PARENT TEACHERS ASSOCIATION HOLD MEETING

The Menlo Park Parent Teachers Association met at the Central School last Friday at 2:30 p. m. and the regular routine business was taken care of.

The school was presented with a coat and sheets to be used in case of accident or sickness.

A request was made for volunteers to take children to the dental clinic at Redwood City.

I was decided to serve hot lunches every Thursday at noon to the school children. The purpose being to raise a fund for the use of the school nurse in emergencies.

The nominating committee for officers for the next year was appointed as follows: Mrs. E. Martens, Mrs. M. Baron, Mrs. Jay T. Cooper, Mrs. Hayden and Miss Ruth Bracesco.

Children from the rooms of Miss Vanderson and Miss Bracesco gave a very pleasing program.

Mr. Anderson of Stanford University was the speaker of the day having for his subject "Supervised Play." His talk was both interesting and instructive.

FOR SALE—Thoroughbred German Rollers, guaranteed singers. Geo. M. Matteson, 208 Menlo Avenue, Menlo Park.

Editor's Note: As an added service to readers this paper has arranged with Mr. Brant to answer any questions regarding musical points where a subscriber desires advice. No charge will be made for such service, but when writing the conductor of the column a self-addressed envelope must be enclosed, and the name of the paper mentioned. Communications should be mailed to Le Roy V. Brant, director, The Institute of Music, 97 South Sixth Street, San Jose, Calif.

In a widely syndicated article, a very eminent authority, makes the contention that most children should be permitted to create music rather than to "take music lessons." His whole point of view may be summed up in the following quotation from his article.

"Real music has to start from the soul. The boy who tortures a tune on a cigar-box banjo, of his own manufacture, is far closer to the real spirit of music than the poor lad whose fond mama stands him up before her patient friends and makes him scrape through a masterpiece on his violin."

There is little doubt that we music teachers are inclined to cram and jam our ideas into our pupils. There is little doubt that we sometimes overlook the creative side of the question and fail to develop the initiative of the child. Yet, we must not forget that it is a part of wisdom to probe by the experiences of the past generation.

The boy who starts to manufacture his own musical instrument is going back some six or eight thousand years. He is starting just where our ancestors started that many centuries ago. On the other hand, the boy who patiently practices scales on a fiddle which was manufactured after the model of Stradivarius has scores of advantage of the other. And after all, it is doubtful if the boy who manufactures a violin, out a cigar box, or a cello out of a packing case, ever produces any real art. For the most part such a boy expresses his creative instinct in a brief time and then throws the whole creation into the discard.

So, you see, there may be a good deal to be said on both sides of the question.

MENLO SCHOOL NEWS

Due to the general unsettled weather this last week, there has not been very much activity. The baseball diamond has been submerged, and the track has also been rendered useless. However on Wednesday afternoon, the coaches had their men out and they were going through as much training schedule as possible.

The intra mural baseball games are over, and the seniors came out victorious. They succeeded in winning every game played. His was a good record, as there were some fine teams that were competing.

Young Eldridge Fowler, lost a bet to two boys at the barbecue, last Tuesday afternoon. It was wagered that he couldn't eat six complete orders of ham and eggs. This may sound easy, but there was a catch to it. Those orders would contain one dozen eggs, six good sized pieces of ham, about a pint of potatoes, and last but not least thirty-six pieces of toast. The latter was the catch. The hungry youngster downed the whole works, except the last three pieces of toast. He returned to school a poorer, less hungry, and a sadder child.

The weekly scholarship marks were posted Wednesday afternoon, and a great number of boys were glad to see that they were not subjected to Saturday morning study hall. This was one of the best weeks so far, and Mr. Hart who is in charge of the compulsory gathering, said that by the looks of things, he wouldn't have very much business. That's the way it should be.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard have returned to school after a week's visit to Southern California. Mr. Howard was in Pasadena where he was located before his interests in Menlo School began. They had a very enjoyable trip, and were not the victims of any disastrous mishaps.

Nurse Puts Up Big Battle

Mrs. Olga Evans, pretty 19-year-old Santa Rosa nurse, is anything but dainty and gentle in her ways, as four members of the Menlo Park police force and deputy sheriffs will testify. Mrs. Evans staged a "one-woman riot" Monday night, starting in Menlo Park and ending in the county jail, and as a result was charged with being drunk and disturbing the peace, while a male companion was charged with having illegal possession of liquor.

According to her story to the police, she started out from Santa Rosa in the expensive machine of her husband, J. J. Evans. She picked up Frank Ryan in San Jose.

They had a bottle of whiskey so the police said, and shared it between them. Later they consumed a little new beer. This mixture got the best of Mrs. Evans, in the opinion of officers, and she drove onto a sidewalk while passing through Menlo Park, narrowly missing crashing into the Dale grocery store at the corner of the Highway and Santa Cruz avenue. Policemen Ed Feeley and Joseph Walsh investigated and found the nurse and her friend quietly taking a drink.

Mrs. Evans became enraged at this police intrusion and got out of the machine to fight the officers. She made a pass at Feeley and fell to the street. When the officers tried to lift her she started a battle royal and it is said that in the course of events which followed rapidly thereafter she kicked Officer Feeley in the face and also kicked a cigarette holder out of Chief of Police Tom Furman's mouth. Ryan it is reported sat tight in the car and said nothing.

At Redwood City, Mrs. Evans again flew into a rage and while being booked, hurled the register, the political code, a ink well and other movable articles handy at deputy sheriffs.

She was then removed to the woman's ward and allowed to cool off. The pair were fined $25 each by Judge Laurence Cook of Menlo Park, and spent the night in the county jail while awaiting the arrival of the cash.

L. T. Murray has moved to Walla Walla, Washington, where he is in charge of the canteen in the U. S. Hospital.

BUILDERS

Community progress cannot be measured in the building of bank budgets, better bungalows, or bigger business. The building program of the local Presbyterian Church is one of the most important projects in the community. In constructing a unit for religious education it is doing more than rear an attractive edifice that will advertise the character of the town. It is preparing to build life, construct character, rear beautiful temples of the soul.

The Sunday School is one of the most important agencies for the promotion of welfare and progress in any town or city. As the public or private school looks after the mental and physical development of the child so the church school must care for his moral growth. We spend three or four hours a day five days a week nine or ten months of the year on the former, and about an hour or more once a week during the year on the latter. Our public schools have trained employees, good equipment, and every necessary convenience. In a complex age so full of subtle temptation to youth is it fair for us to ignore the need for spiritual attention?

Civilized citizens will be glad to co-operate with those who are the great builders of the community. Financial aid should be forthcoming. More than that get your money back in the tremendous returns that come through regular use of the facilities to be provided. The Presbyterian Church and other churches deserve your confidence and co-operation, your sympathy and support, and more than that a little of yourself. They are the great builders of this community.

IS MEXICO CIVILIZED?

Stereotyped notions frequently determine our opinions. We think that all Frenchmen live on wine and frog legs and that all Italians reel in quantities of macaroni. Every Englishman has a bull dog disposition and lacks a sense of humor, while every oriental is a potential Dr. Chan-Fu, villain of "The Silent House", mystery drama playing in San Francisco. So, also we think of Mexicans as people who eat tamales and tortillas, work on the railroad, and carry a knife for use in the dark. Whenever an outbreak occurs in the republic south of the Rio Grande we shrug our shoulders and say, "Revolutions seem to be Mexico's national game." And then we may more seriously inquire, "Is Mexico civilized?"

In this nation with five times the area of California, approximately 15,000,000 inhabitants, and over four thousand miles of coast line, two armies are battling for the control of the government. President Emilio Portes Gil, aided by former President Elias Piutarcho Calles, is trying to maintain the political order recognized by the United States. President Hoover has approved the shipment of munitions to the government which came to power in 1920 when General Alvaro Obregon became president. Perhaps already the destiny of a rising people will have been determined in a decisive battle at Durango or Torreón.

What will happen? Will they have a repetition of the years following the ousting of Porfirio Diaz, who with the exception of four years, governed and exploited Mexico from 1877 to 1911? The names of Madero, Huerta, Villa, and Carranza flash across the mind as we recall the land which for ten years was torn by revolution, assassination, exploitation, and intrigue. Obregon and Carranza have brought peace to Mexico, established schools, improved relations with the United States. Shall this be sacrificed for the ambitions of barbaric and jealous military leaders? Shall the work of Saenz, Vasconcellos, and other followers of the progressive Revolutionary party be lost in another period of chaos, confusion, and catastrophe?

This the people of Mexico must decide. There are a few American imperialists who would have the United States adopt the wayward neighbor, reform him, and in some hundred years return to his control the government of Mexico. This would be unutterable folly. Assuming that Mexico would like to have this done we would be foolish to even think of it. We could not afford to risk the expense of such an undertaking, the ill-will of Hispanic-America, or the suspicion of Europe. The United States can best help America by friendly aid to the recognized government. Ambassador Morrow has done much to establish happy relations between the two nations. Mexico must learn to govern itself. In considering the dissension in Mexico we may remember that the United States once had a Civil War.

YOUNG MEN AND WOMEN WHO THINK CLEARLY THE GREATEST DEMAND OF AMERICAN BUSINESS

Bankers Association President Gives the Five Essentials of Sound Thinking in Business—Greater Opportunity
Than Ever Before for Young People With Educational Training and Power to Analyze Problems.

By CRAIG B. HAZLEWOOD
President American Bankers Association

ONLY half a century ago Michael Pupin, a shepherd boy, guarded his flocks by night among the fields of Serbia. Thieves often lurked in the bordering cornfields awaiting an opportunity to make off with a part of the herd. Serbian boys were taught a method of signalling one another for warning and help. Each carried a knife with a long wooden handle which he would thrust deep into the ground and in case cattle thieves approached he would strike the wooden handle. The sound would be transmitted through the ground to other boys some distance away who could hear and interpret the message.

CRAIG B. HAZLEWOOD

"Why is it," Pupin asked his mother, "that we can signal this way? Why is it the sound can be heard through the ground, but not through the air? Why is it the signals can be heard in the pasture land so much better than in the plowed fields?" The boy's mother could not answer his questions, nor could the village teacher. However, having an eager mind and great determination, the boy decided to go to America, where he might win an education and find out the answers to these and other perplexing questions. Hundreds of other boys under the same circumstances and with the same set of conditions merely accepted these things without once questioning them just because they had always done them that way.

The Land of Education and Success

So a penniless immigrant boy from Serbia at the age of fifteen landed in New York in 1874 and, years later, having worked his way through Columbia University, concentrated the wonder and simplicity of his mind upon the problem of sound, which had puzzled him as a shepherd boy. The results of his thinking—what he has accomplished for the long distance telephone and for radio communication by his inventions—are known the world over. "If during the past twenty-two years this company had been compelled to do without one invention of Michael Pupin," an official of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company once said, "and yet give the same service it is giving today it would have had to spend at least $100,000,000 more than it has expended."

These inventions, in which millions of dollars of capital have been invested, were the result of the thinking of a mere country lad who had the simplicity to wonder, the determination to know and the power to apply what he learned.

Stimulating the imagination and thinking is the greatest purpose of education. What American business needs more than anything else is young men and women to think—individuals who are not mentally anchored to tradition, who do not merely appropriate other people's ideas, but who are hard, purposeful thinkers, independent and unprejudiced, with the ability to concentrate and strike straight for the heart of a problem.

Business Needs Folk Who Think
America has astounded the world by its readiness in casting aside traditional viewpoints, disregarding traditional difficulties and pioneering new shortcut formulas in the realm of business. Business is undergoing epochal changes.

Business problems are crowding in upon us so rapidly that the executive knows not where to look for adequate help or relief. With the enormous increase in size and intricacy of business affairs the problems have become so complicated and the mass of information necessary to their solution so great that the "days are not long enough." The demand for managerial and executive ability is rushing ahead—the opportunity for young men and women who have the professional training and who develop genuine thinking power is greater than ever.

All business feels the same crying need for the men who see clearly and think conclusively. Wherever we look—manufacturing, wholesaling, retailing, banking, financing—new forces are at work. Vast movements are under way and executives are seeking light upon perplexing problems daily.

Let us consider briefly the five essentials of a sound thinker. If I were looking for a young man of exceptional promise I should hope, first, to find in him the simplicity to wonder. Every great advancement in business has been made by men who dared to wonder, who had the courage to inquire into present procedure and who had the audacity to ask whether something that had been done a certain way for a long time might not be wrong. Although the history of America's progress from its very discovery to the present time has shown the value of an inquiring mind, there is still an inevitable tendency in most men to accept in a docile manner the opinions, methods, supposed facts, procedures and processes of the past. With due reverence to the effort, the spirit, the accomplishments of the past, let us make it our rule that everything be looked at with the clear questioning mind of the scientist.

Business Requires an Open Mind

Second, among the essentials for sound thinking I would write down an open mind. We have mentioned freeing our minds from the influence of tradition. Let us think also without prejudice of personal feelings, desires or consequence. Let us seek only the truth. Mere surface reasoning must be discounted. Old "can't's" and "don't's" must be thrown into the discard. A man who has an open mind will do a great many things because he doesn't know they can't be done.

The third essential to sound thinking is knowledge—a thorough, comprehensive understanding of all the factors involved in a problem. It has been said that most problems answer themselves when the facts have been gathered. A well known student and teacher of business describes the method of attacking a problem as tearing it down, reassembling the problem and drawing the conclusion. There can be nothing but guess work or intuition unless the unknown quantities are discovered.

As a fourth essential sound thinking requires the capacity to generalize. How often we have seen men sweating and confused before a mass of details which they were utterly unable to classify and crystallize. We have the problem of sorting out the relevant, attaining a perspective and reaching a conclusion that can be defended against any attack. To certain minds this procedure comes naturally; to others training in the solution of complicated problems points the way out.

The Time for Action
Fifth among the essentials of sound thinking is the power to apply. A few individuals have minds that travel at random or in circles. Some have minds that even refuse to budge. But there are still others who naturally or through training have minds that can be directed straight through to the practical application of their thoughts. They refuse to compromise or to be thwarted in purpose before definite application of their ideas has been achieved.

It is possible, I believe, for young people to train themselves to an inquisitive attitude, an open mind and the ability to classify and interpret material step by step from the beginning of a problem to its final solution and application. Here, then, is the thought I would leave—the paramount need of business is sound thinking. Some may think I have overstated the case, have set too high a standard. They may feel that they are merely cogs in a machine. That, too, is a part of the problem. The only way to solve that is to find time and place in the day's work for thinking.

SCHOOL SAVINGS BANK- ING MOVEMENT REACHES IMPRESSIVE PROPORTIONS

Almost 14,000 of America's schools now have school savings banking plans in operation, and about four million pupils are learning systematic savings through this type of thrift with deposits in excess of $26,000,000 recent reports of the American Bankers Association's Savings Bank Division show. The schools included in the reports are attended by 4,609,822 pupils, of whom 3,980,237 are participants in the school savings banking plans as depositors. During the year these pupils received interest in the amount of $947,610 on their deposits.

The reports gathered by the association also show that there are 33 cities in the United States in which a full 100 per cent of the grammar school enrollment is participating in school savings banking. The figures covering high schools show that in 4 cities 100 per cent of the attendance in this class are school savers.

Getting there ahead of the trouble

During the afternoon of March 17, 1928, an alarm bell rang in a telephone test station. This meant that a puncture had been made in the air-tight sheath of a busy inter-city cable. The men on duty knew that the injury was somewhere within 50 miles.

Highly developed locating devices were instantly applied and in sixty-five minutes the trouble spot was located. By 7:15 in the evening, before the break in the sheath had affected service on any of the 248 pairs of wires in the cable, the repairs had been made without one conversation being interrupted. This special alarm system is one of the many mechanical and electrical wonders developed by Bell System engineers to guard telephone conversations.

Automatic warning signals, electrical locating devices, constant testing of all switchboard apparatus and circuits—these are some of the ceaseless efforts that so effectively reduced interruptions to service on Bell lines in 1928. There is no standing still in the Bell System.

Fred Nessler Displays Old Pictures

Fred Nessler is displaying quite a picture gallery in the window of his Little Green Door, and it is attracting widespread attention from both the residents of Menlo Park and residents of the entire peninsula.

Some of the pictures date way back to the good old days of the "silk hat" and show Menlo Park as it used to be as well as giving an excellent idea of what some of the leading citizens of the City of Menlo Park and the Peninsula looked like in their child hood.

It would take altogether too much space to mention all those appearing in the pictures but by careful consideration prominent Native Sons, contractor and business men and women may be recognized even if the young men are dressed in knee length trousers and the girls in short dresses.

Look them over; it will cost nothing, and may bring to memory some good times and old friends of the dim, distant past.
